

ISVS e-journal: General Policies

Open Access Policy

ISVS e-journal is open-access.

This means that articles published in the ISVS e-journal are available and reusable worldwide free of charge and without restrictions immediately on publication, and remain so forever, through the repository at CROSSREF assigning a DOI: Digital Object Identifier.

Self-archiving

By publishing in the ISVS e-journal, the authors keep the rights of self-archiving. Authors can archive the PDF version on their personal websites, their institution's repositories or any non-commercial repository for personal use, internal institutional use or for permitted scholarly posting. However, it is recommended to use the final published version of the paper with the acknowledgement of the original source of publication and a link inserted to the published article on the journal website. They can do so any time after the paper is published on the journal website.

Conflicts of interest

Conflicts of interest comprise those which may not be fully apparent and which may influence the judgment of the author, the reviewers and the editors. They have been described as those which may make a reasonable reader feel misled or deceived. They may be personal, commercial, political, academic or financial. "Financial" interests may include employment, research funding, stock or share ownership, payment for lectures or travel, consultancies and company support for staff. The authors, reviewers and editors should consult Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE) GUIDELINES ON GOOD PUBLICATION PRACTICE how to act once any conflict of interest is suspected.

Research Publication ethics

The authors should follow the international standards of responsible research publication promoted by the Committee on Publication Ethics. The journal will take usual steps to identify and prevent the publication of papers where research misconduct may have occurred, including plagiarism, citation manipulation, and data falsification/fabrication. The papers submitted to the journal are checked with the Crossref Similarity Check Service to ensure their originality. Alternatively, the authors are asked to submit a similarity check using 'Turnitin' or other similar software.
